行业背景

《“十五五”规划建议》提出，建设安全舒适绿色智慧的“好房子”，实施房屋品质提升工程和物业服务品质提升行动。通过好的标准、好的设计、好的材料、好的建造和好的运维等五项工作推动“好房子”建设，今年以来各地持续出台“好房子”建设技术标准，部分城市也出台文件对建筑设计规划、计容规则等进行完善和规范。9月，上海发文明确可局部提高建筑高度并放松阳台计容面积计算规则；成都、合肥等地出台规范政策，对于住房项目的计容规则等进行完善和规范，稳定“好房子”政策预期，未来或有更多城市跟进。

Industry Background

The "15th Five-Year Plan" proposal suggests building safe, comfortable, green, and intelligent 'good houses,' implementing housing quality improvement projects and enhancement actions for property service quality. The construction of 'good houses' is promoted through five key aspects: good standards, good design, good materials, good construction, and good operations and maintenance. Since the beginning of this year, local governments have continued to introduce technical standards for the construction of 'good houses,' and some cities have also issued documents to improve and regulate building design planning, floor area ratio rules, and other aspects. In September, Shanghai issued a notice clarifying that building heights can be partially increased and relaxing the calculation rules for balcony floor area ratios. Cities like Chengdu and Hefei have introduced regulatory policies to improve and standardize rules for housing project floor areas, stabilizing policy expectations for 'good houses,' and more cities may follow suit in the future.

Previous Edition Review

The 2025 Green Building Expo was successfully held from August 6 to 8 at the Shanghai World Expo Exhibition Hall, focusing on three main areas: building energy efficiency, villa systems, and wellness environments. The exhibition covered an area of 20,000 square meters, featuring 186 exhibitors and attracting 20,053 visitors. It showcased everything from new building construction to the renovation of existing buildings, from architectural design to green construction, and from energy-efficient operations to innovations in technology and integrated system solutions. The expo aims to create a closed-loop industrial chain, introducing a curated architectural concept that emphasizes cross-industry integration and diversified development. It highlighted application scenarios in architecture, industry, elderly care, cultural tourism, new rural areas, commercial spaces, and residential projects, practicing the theme of 'green and low-carbon, empowering high-quality buildings.' On-site, more than ten professional forums demonstrated a four-dimensional linkage of 'design-materials-technology-operation and maintenance,' forming a three-dimensional value hub across the entire industry chain and injecting strong momentum for industry upgrades. The event attracted professional visitors nationwide, including government authorities from provincial and municipal housing administration systems, industry associations, research institutes, developers, design institutes, construction companies, interior decoration firms, trade distributors, investment and financing agencies, public institutions, energy service providers, and private owners, collectively establishing a full-industry-chain matchmaking platform for green building materials. Through professional, market-oriented, branded, and international operations, the expo aims to become a specialized platform for overall green building solutions, a nationwide showcase of the latest achievements in green building development, and the main release platform for industry policies and innovations.
